DATA PROTECTION ACT 1984

We are obliged to draw your attention to the provisions of the above Act, as your membership details will be kept on computer. The Act is designed to regulate the use of automatically processed information relating to individuals and provision of services in respect of such information. The Act contains provisions relating to registration by the Data Protection Register of Data users and persons operating computer bureaux and the rights of data subjects. There are certain exemptions from these provisions including personal data used only for the purpose of distribution or recording of articles or information to the data subjects and consisting of their names, addresses and other particulars necessary for effecting distribution. This exemption also applies if you have been asked whether you object to the data about you being held as mentioned above and you have not objected. It is also a condition of this exemption that data is not disclosed or used unless the data subject has consented to such disclosure or use of personal information other than in relation to the distribution or articles or information to members. Members are advised that their objections to data being held in this manner could cause considerable difficulty and extra work to FODSA officers and may result in delays and dispatch of articles and information.
